One in three MPs pay party for office

One in three MPs, including almost half of the Cabinet, have claimed £3,500 to £20,000 per year in pay for office space from their local parties. Nick Clegg and Jeremy Hunt are among the 134 MPs. PAGE 28

PLAYTIME

Best-selling toys

- Yo-yo: Dancing winds (1950s) - since 500,000 were sold in the UK in 1960. The yo-yo's success was down to the popularity of television shows and movies that featured them.

- Mr Potato Head: The children's classic was invented in 1949 by Richard Roman, who wanted to create a toy that could be played with in different ways. The toy has since been updated and modernized.

- Barbie: The first Barbie doll was introduced in 1959. She was a fashion icon and has since been released in many different versions.

- Radio 40 touch tablet: The story of how the idea of the first touch tablet came about and how it has evolved over time. The tablet had a built-in keyboard and was designed for children.

- Rubik's Cube: The famous puzzle was invented by Hungarian architect Erno Rubik in 1974. It quickly became a runaway success and has since been sold in millions of copies worldwide.

-The thoughts of the nation's children will soon be turning to their Christmas lists. In preparation, the retailer Debenhams has drawn up a list of the best-selling toys in its 200-year history. Here are some of our favourites from the toy box, both classic and modern.
